

DEANE, DRAY, & DEANE'S PATENT
FIRE LAMP STOVE, adapted to the drawing-room, dining-room, and library. It has three main qualifications which enable it to be used in any room, and which have already secured for it the public preference. First, it is so adapted that the cost of a patent stove of a similar capacity, and second, the capacity of radiating heat is greater than that of any other stove in existence; and, lastly, its economy of fuel is so considerable, that where it is adopted the expense of fuel will be reduced by one half. The lamp, when in use, is protected by a glass shield, and the flame is so adjusted that it is not so hot as to burn the fuel. The stove is so constructed that, as the fuel burns, it draws up the air, and the Patent Fire Lamp Stove has the unequalled recommendation of the first architect of the day.
